It furnished fraternity rooms for two of the girls' fraternities, and a place of meeting for the clubs of the university. Grace George grows graceful

People always laughed at Grace George. At 30 she was 4 ft. 11 in. and tipped the Fairbanks at 210—and her intimates called her "Grace" and "Dolly" and such other pet names. She often thought that she saw a sting in those terms of endearment, and finally decided to turn the scales on her loving friends by springing a surprise on them. So she let it be known that she was going away on a long journey. She did not budge from her house for 30 days, but took religiously during that time three times a day and before bedtime, one teaspoonful of the excellently effective Marmola Prescription. The result was she got down from 210 to 170. She never told her friends what did it, but credit where it is due, it was the Marmola Prescription: 1/2 ounce Marmola, 1/2 ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and 3/4 ounce Syrup Simplex, which can be had at any good druggist's for a trifling sum.

NEW YORK'S SPRING SEASON OPENS; MANY PARTIES ARE SCHEDULED FOR NEXT FEW WEEKS.

NEW YORK, May 16.—New York's spring suburban season is now at its height, and much gaiety is in progress, the calendar of society being crowded. There are so many luncheons, bridge parties, dinners and theater parties in town, that what with the racing at Belmont Park, the visits to nearby resorts such as Tuxedo, and the invitations for the week ends at various country seats on Long Island, New Jersey, Westchester county, etc., there is really more going on in a social sense than during the latter part of the winter. Plans are being made for July and August, and arrangements perfected for stays at Newport, at Bar Harbor, in the Berkshires and in the Adirondacks.

Tuxedo is now at its best, and no foreigner happening to drift into New York these days should leave without visiting this charming suburban creation of the late Pierre Lorillard. For it is there that a particularly agreeable phase of social life is to be seen. As is fitting in a club, everybody knows everybody else, and a camaraderie exists there that is to be found in no other of our out-of-town colonies, but it contributes in no small degree to the charm of the park. All the villas are either occupied by their owners, or else rented to friends and acquaintances of the same particular set, and hospitality is the order of the day, house parties succeeding one another without interruption, while the week-end always finds not only the cottages but also the club house crowded. The climax of the season at Tuxedo will come with the annual open air horse show on June 19 and 20, at which many of our young girls, such as Polly French, now Mrs. Santa Wagtast, the Harrisons and Sadie Jones are usually seen in the ring beautifully mounted and looking particularly well in their natty riding habits, after which New Yorkers will take their departure and make way for visitors from the South, who each year rent places there for terms of ten weeks, dating from the end of June.

With regard to the tide of European travel the outward departure is already waning, and there are almost as many members of the 1,100 returning as there are leaving. Reginald Vanderbilt, with his wife and child, got back yesterday after spending several months abroad, while Robert L. Gerry and his bride, who was Miss Cornelia Harriman, returned a week ago, just too late to enable young Mrs. Gerry, who is one of the "leading members of the Ladies' Four-in-Hand Driving Club, to take part in its annual long-distance drive to Madison, N. J. Elsie Dyer is also home once more, while the Oliver Isells, who have been touring in Sicily and braving the brigands, with which the island is declared to be infested, are expected next week. Mrs. H. O. Havemeyer and Mr. and Mrs. Theodore A. Havemeyer are likewise here once more.

James J. Van Alen is also looked for this week, though none of his friends in New York accord much credence to the story telegraphed from Newport to the effect that he proposes to spend the season there and to occupy Wakehurst. Wakehurst has been to a great extent dismantled, and it would need much in the way of redecoration and refurbishing to enable its owner to live there through the season and to dispense hospitality beneath its picturesque roof. James Van Alen always visits New York at this particular season of the year; but it is solely for the purpose of spending some weeks at his fishing club on the Restigouche river, up in Canada.

He is so fond of this form of sport that he never allows anything to interfere with his late May and early June sojourn at the Restigouche river club, and has been known to break off a tour around the world, leave his friends and traveling companions in the lurch and to hasten all the way back from Japan across the Pacific and across the entire continent just in order to have time to fish. He will, as usual, put in, however, a few days here in New York, both coming and going, just to visit familiar haunts and to see old friends, and may likewise loiter a day or two at Newport, just to look over his property there.

Equal skepticism prevails with regard to the story that his daughter, May, is returning with him to spend the season.

At Newport. She has definitely established her home on yonder side of the ocean, has leased for a term of years to the Ernest Isells the charming house in East Fifty-sixth street, which her father had purchased and practically rebuilt for her at a heavy cost, while on the two occasions when he rented cottages for her at Newport in the hope that she would occupy them, she absolutely refused to leave Europe. It must not be forgotten that in Rush-ton Hall Jimmie Van Alen and his daughter, May, have a grand old country place far superior to anything of the kind that they could get here either by purchase or by renting. Moreover, they are treated as country magnates with a degree of deference throughout the entire district of Rushton Hall, which they could never hope to enjoy in America. In fact, the inducements offered by their present mode of existence in England are much stronger than anything which could be accorded to them on this side of the Atlantic, and the consequence is that they feel happier abroad, though they have had the good sense from a European as well as from an American point of view to retain their citizenship of the United States, and to refrain from forsaking their allegiance to Uncle Sam.

Although the Coaching Club is holding no parade this year, yet its president, Colonel Jay, is doing all in his power to encourage the sport, and views with favor every venture in the direction of four-in-hand driving. Thus, although he is not directly responsible for the enterprise, yet he is known to hail with satisfaction the placing on the road of the coach Marmet, which, beginning tomorrow, will leave the Holland House every afternoon for the Arrow Head Inn, at Port Washington, in time for dinner there, returning later in the evening, and it is probable that Colonel Jay will, on one of the early trips this week, take out a party and handle the reins himself. There are few more skillful four-in-hand whips in this country, or for the matter of that, even in England, than the Colonel, who for more than a generation has presided over the destinies of the New York Coaching Club, premier organization of the kind in America. He is indeed one of the only veterans left. For Colonel the Lancey Kastle seldom now drives four-in-hand, while most of the other original members of the club have been gathered to their fathers. In fact, the organization is now composed almost entirely of young men—that is to say, young men from the point of view of Colonel Jay.

Quite a number of weddings are scheduled for the next three or four weeks, and of course among the smartest will be those of Miss Grace Chapin, daughter of Mrs. Alfred Chapin, to William Beverly Rodgers, on June 1; of Miss Carolyn Fellows, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carolyn Fellows, to Richard Lewis Morris, on June 9, and that of Miss Lydia Mason Jones to Arthur G. Blagden, on June 20. Miss Jones' wedding will be solemnized in St. Thomas' Church. That of Miss Fellows will take place at Grace Church, Miss Carolyn Fellows will have no bridesmaids, and only her cousin, Harriet Fellows, for her maid of honor, and Miss Grace Chapin has adopted the same plan and will have as her sole attendant Mrs. J. Gordon Douglas, who was Miss Ann's bridesmaid, as her matron of honor. The bridegroom in this case, however, will keep up for the absence of bridesmaids by having no less than fourteen ushers, including Stuyvesant Fish, Jr., William L. Hineleander Stewart, Jr., Alexander Keogh, and Albert Zabriskie Gray. The bride, who is one of the most beautiful girls in New York society, arrived yesterday from Europe with her mother, Mrs. Alfred Chapin, bringing with her a trousseau acquired in Paris.

INDEX HUMOR.

Vance Y. Tracwell, the famous English librarian and index-maker, in an address in Akron said: "Indexes seem dry, but when we look into them we find them full of unconscious humor. They could tell you a thousand oddities of indexes, but there is only time for one."

"An aged friend of mine, a caustic old gentleman, indexed the memoirs of a certain admiral. There was a story in the memoirs about a parrot. This story of old friend disbelieved. He indicated his disbelief by indexing the parrot story under a great many heads like this:

"Absurd Tale About a Parrot, 214." "Anecdote, Absurd One, About a Parrot, 214." "Fictitious Anecdote of Parrot, 214." "Incredible Parrot Story, 214." "Marvelous Story of a Parrot, 214." "Preposterous Tale About a Parrot, 214."

"Rational Parrot, as Asserted, 214." "Tale About a Rational Parrot, as Alleged, 214." "Tall Parrot Story, 214." "Talking Parrot's Alleged Intelligence, 214."

"Very Absurd Tale About a Parrot, 214." "Wonderful Marvelous Parrot Anecdote, 214."—Buffalo Enquirer.

THAT WOMAN'S FAULT.

"That woman next door is really dreadful, John," said a young married woman to her husband. "She does nothing but talk the whole day long. She cannot get any work done. I'm sure."

"Oh," remarked the husband. "I thought she was a cat-actorbox. And to whom does she talk?"

"Why, my dear, to me, of course," was the reply. "She talks to me over the fence."—Exchange.
